Survey Material

- Spend 2-3 hours a week working on the analysis
- Either Wednesday or Thursday afternoons
- Publish results in the Thresher
- Submit a formal copy to the administration, i.e. Provost's Office, Undergraduate Curriculum Committee, International Studies Faculty
- We still need to decide how to analyze the data; what data is pertinent
- Possibly publish an online document, assuming we get a website up and running

Big Plan for the Semester

Charlotte and I were talking about ways to keep Ethnic Studies a hot topic on campus. We decided that having a "Workshop Weekend" would be a great way for us to engage the student population in dialogue on the issues. This workshop weekend would be more interactive than the successful panel discussion last semester.

- To do this, we would solicit other cultural organizations on campus to sponsor a workshop, or at least offer suggestions
- ESTF would sponsor general workshops on Ethnic Studies
- Each organization could offer refreshments
- This would take place late October/early November Saturday and Sunday
- The general plan would be 4-5 workshops each on Saturday and Sunday. Some could be repeats. Each workshop would be 45-90 minutes, headed by representatives from whichever organization sponsored the workshop. Faculty would be invited too to lead workshops or participate
- Thresher would cover the Workshop Weekend

Plans for Fall 2002

- Meet with International Studies Faculty
- Workshop Weekend (title to be decided later)
- Finish Survey Analysis
- If possible, work on the proposal for our vision of ES and the introductory class in ES
